Wednesday, 27 February 2008

Lake Washington Technical College has partnered with five other Washington state colleges to provide free online tutoring to its students through the "eTutoring" online platform.

The six colleges in the partnership, called the Northwest eTutoring Consortium, are Lake Washington Technical College, Washington State University, Tacoma Community College, North Seattle Community College, Edmonds Community College and Bates Technical College.

Students from all six colleges now have access 24 hours a day to eTutoring's professional tutoring services in writing, math, statistics and accounting. Services include an online writing lab and "eChat," a live communication tool that allows tutors and students to chat, whiteboard, share files and applications, and use audio and video tools.

Students will have access to live, one-on-one tutoring with tutors from all six Northwest eTutoring Consortium colleges. Students can access the eTutoring platform at www.etutoring.org.
